1. Verses of the Elder Nun Puṇṇā

- 236. "A water-carrier I was in the cold, always going down into the water;
Frightened by fear of punishment from my masters, afflicted by fear of verbal blame.
- 237. "Frightened of whom, brahmin, do you always descend into the water;
With trembling limbs, you feel the cold intensely."
- 238. Knowing me indeed, dear lady, Puṇṇikā, you inquire;
Doing wholesome action, preventing evil that has been done.
- 239. "Whether one is old or young, whoever commits an evil deed;
By sprinkling with water, even he is freed from evil deeds."
- 240. "Who then told you this, one not knowing to one not knowing;
By sprinkling with water, one is freed from evil deeds."
- 241. "Surely they will go to heaven, all the frogs and turtles;
Serpents and crocodiles too, and whatever others dwell in water.
- 242. "Sheep-butchers, pig-butchers, fishermen, deer-hunters;
Thieves and executioners too, and whatever others are evil-doers;
By sprinkling with water, even they would be freed from evil deeds.
- 243. "If these rivers would carry away for you the much evil done before;
They would also carry away your merit, thereby you would be an outsider.
- 244. "That of which, brahmin, you are frightened, always descending into the water;
That very thing, brahmin, do not do, let not the cold harm your skin."
- 245. "Me, who had entered the wrong path, you brought to the noble path;
By sprinkling with water, dear lady, I give you this cloth."
- 246. "Let the cloth be yours alone, I do not wish for a cloth;
If you fear suffering, if suffering is unpleasant to you.
- 247. "Do not do evil action, whether openly or in secret;
If you will do or are doing evil action.
- 248. There is no freedom from suffering for you, even if you approach and flee;

If you fear suffering, if suffering is unpleasant to you.

- 249. "Go to the Buddha, the Teaching, and such a Community for refuge; Take upon yourself the moralities, that will be for your benefit."
- 250. "I go to the Buddha, the Teaching, and such a Community for refuge;
I take upon myself the moralities, that will be for my benefit."
- 251. "Formerly I was a kinsman of Brahma, today I am a true brahmin;
I am a possessor of the threefold true knowledge, accomplished in the Vedas, a learned one, and I am one who has bathed."
