9. Chronicle of the Buddha Anomadassī

- 1. After Sobhita, the Perfectly Enlightened One, the best of bipeds;
Anomadassī, of immeasurable fame, radiant, difficult to surpass.
- 2. He, having cut off all bondage, having destroyed the three existences;
Taught the path leading to non-return, to gods and humans.
- 3. Unshakeable like the ocean, difficult to approach like a mountain;
He is infinite like space, like a king of sal trees in full bloom.
- 4. Even by seeing that Buddha, living beings are pleased;
Having heard the word he speaks, they attain the Deathless.
- 5. The full realisation of the teaching for him was then prosperous and flourishing;
Hundreds of koṭis fully realised, at the first teaching of the Dhamma.
- 6. Thereafter at the full realisation, when the showers of the Teaching were raining;
Eighty million fully realised, at the second teaching of the Dhamma.
- 7. Thereafter when raining, and satisfying living beings;
For seventy-eight crores, there was the third full realisation.
- 8. There were three assemblies of that great sage too;
Of those who had attained the power of direct knowledge, fully blown with liberation.
- 9. There was then an assembly of eight hundred thousand,
Of those who had abandoned vanity and delusion, of peaceful minds, such ones.
- 10. The second meeting was of seven hundred thousand,
Of those without blemish, stainless, at peace, such ones.
- 11. The third meeting was of six hundred thousand,
Of those who had attained the power of direct knowledge, quenched, austere ascetics.
- 12. I at that time, was a demon of great supernormal power;
Lord wielding power over many tens of millions of demons.
- 13. Even then, having approached that excellent Buddha, the great sage,
I satisfied with food and drink the leader of the world together with the Community.

14. He too, the sage with purified vision, declared of me then;
"Immeasurable cosmic cycles from now, this one will be a Buddha.
15. "Having striven in striving, etc. we shall be face to face with him."
16. Having heard his word too, joyful, with an agitated mind;
I determined upon further ascetic practice, for the fulfilment of the ten perfections.
17. The city was named Candavatī, the warrior was named Yasavā;
The mother was named Yasodharā, of the Teacher Anomadassī.
18. For ten thousand years, he dwelt in the house;
Sirī, Upasirī, and Vaḍḍha, three excellent mansions.
19. Twenty-three thousand women, fully adorned;
Sirimā was the name of that woman, Upavāṇa was her son.
20. Having seen the four signs, he departed by palanquin;
For no less than ten months, the Conqueror strove in striving.
21. Asked by Brahmā, the peaceful one, Anomadassī, the great sage;
The great hero turned the wheel, in the park named Sudassana.
22. Nisabha and Anoma were the chief disciples;
Varuṇa by name was the attendant of the Teacher Anomadassī.
23. Sundarī and Sumanā were the chief female disciples;
The enlightenment tree of that Blessed One is called the Ajjuna tree.
24. Nandivaḍḍha and Sirivaḍḍha were the chief male attendants;
Uppalā and Padumā were the chief female attendants.
25. Fifty-eight cubits, very high, the great sage;
Radiance radiates from him, like the risen sun.
26. For a hundred thousand years, life span exists for that long;
Remaining for that long, he helped many people to cross.
27. The Scriptures, fully in bloom, with Worthy Ones, such ones;
With those without lust, with the unstained, the Conqueror's Dispensation was made resplendent.
28. And that Teacher of immeasurable fame, those pairs incomparable;
All that has disappeared, are not all activities empty?
29. The Conqueror Anomadassī, the Teacher, attained final Nibbāna in Dhamma Park;
Right there is the stūpa of the Conqueror, twenty-five in height.

The lineage of the Blessed One Anomadassī is seventh.
